“The way I can show my support is by going to Iraq and coming here to Columbus AFB and interact with the troops,” said Kevin Greene.

During his 15 year football career Kevin Greene played for the Pittsburgh Steelers, Saint Louis Rams and the Carolina Panthers. He also made a brief appearance in the World Wrestling Federation, when Hulk Hogan invited him to wrestle.

VA seeks buglers to play ‘Taps’ at national cemeteries

Gerry Gilmore
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of volunteer buglers and trumpeters are being sought to participate in Armed Forces Day observances held at veterans’ cemeteries nationwide and overseas, a U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs official said.

The event, called “Echo Taps Worldwide,” will be held May 19 and is co-sponsored by the VA’s National Cemetery Administration and “Bugles Across America,” a volunteer group, said Michael Nacincik, the cemetery administration’s chief of communications and outreach support.

“Echo Taps” will take place at VA-operated national cemeteries, U.S. Department of the Interior/National Park Service national cemeteries and American Battle Monuments Commission cemeteries located overseas, Nacincik said.

“It is an extremely important event for a number of reasons,” Nacincik said. “It honors the service of veterans to our country.”

The initiative also encourages musicians to perform as buglers at veterans’ funeral ceremonies year round, Nacincik said. In 2006, 688,000 veterans died in the United States, he noted, with most belonging to the World War II generation.

“There is overwhelming popular support to have ‘Taps’ played at veterans’ funerals,” Nacincik said. “And, obviously, with that many burials taking place, there are not enough buglers to provide a live bugler at every burial.”

Nevertheless, Bugles Across America has done “a very good job” of obtaining volunteers to play “Taps” at military funerals, Nacincik said.

“It is important that our nation preserves the tradition of a live bugler to play final military honors,” Leslie Hampton, a Navy veteran and Bugles Across America volunteer, said in a recent VA news release.

“Hopefully, ‘Echo Taps’ will go even further and help to identify people who know how to play ‘Taps’ or are willing to learn how to play ‘Taps’ and motivate them to want to provide the service when they’re available at veterans’ funerals in the future,” Nacincik said.

Volunteer buglers and trumpeters must register through the VA’s website, which is attached to the “Echo Taps” site at www.echotaps.org, Nacincik said.

The VA operates 124 veterans’ cemeteries across the United States, Nacincik said. Generally, persons who’ve received other than dishonorable discharges after completion of military service are eligible for burial at a VA-operated national cemetery, he noted.

Daylight-savings time

In 2005, Congress extended daylight-savings time by four weeks. This year, instead of the traditional first Sunday in April, we will "spring forward" on Sunday. Though not expected, this change may impact some of our automated systems. For most devices the correct date will be acquired from Global Positioning System clocks. But major software companies have stated that some of the companies' older products will require manual updates. The 14th Communications Squadron is working to identify impacted systems, but urge all users to look over their functional systems and desktop applications, especially scheduling and calendar applications, after Sunday to ensure everything is "sprung."

Anthrax vaccine program implemented

Air Force News

WASHINGTON — The Anthrax Vaccine Immunization Program, or AVIP, mandates Airmen assigned to high-threat areas receive the Anthrax vaccine, while also providing Airmen the choice to continue anthrax vaccines if they are not assigned to a designated high-threat area.

The Department of Defense issued a new policy memo Oct. 12 requiring the DOD begin mandatory anthrax vaccinations for individuals in selected high-threat areas or special mission units.

Headquarters Air Force sent out an implementation message Feb. 16 to major commands, directing them to implement the AVIP, in accordance with current DOD and Air Force guidance, said Lt. Col. Todd Shull, Air Force Counter-Biological Warfare Division chief.

This implementation is in the initial stages and the Air Force has established a four-week timeframe, upon unit notification, for units to begin giving the Anthrax vaccine to Airmen meeting the mandatory guidelines, he said.

The mandatory anthrax vaccinations are limited to Airmen who have orders to or are (currently) in specific high-threat areas - primarily the CENTCOM AOR or Korean Peninsula, Colonel Shull said.

In order to be subject to the mandatory anthrax vaccination you must remain in (these areas) for 15 or more consecutive days, the colonel said.

The DOD determined that these forward areas pose the highest threat for military forces so they must meet the mandatory anthrax vaccine measures. Additionally, personnel in designated special mission units, regardless of location, are also subject to mandatory Anthrax vaccination.

“The second key piece of the program is the voluntary aspect of the AVIP,” Colonel Shull said. “This involves Airmen who have received at least one anthrax vaccine dose since 1998. Under the new guidelines, they can elect to continue getting the anthrax vaccinations in accordance with the dosing schedule whether or not they are (or will be) assigned to a designated high-threat area.”

Taking the vaccine voluntarily is consistent with good medical practice and personal protection, Colonel Shull said.

“While we’ve identified two areas as the most likely locations for an Anthrax threat, we saw in 2001 that anthrax attacks could occur anywhere,” he said. “Vaccination offers a layer of protection, in addition to antibiotics and other measures, that is critical for members of the armed forces.”

The anthrax vaccine was first licensed in the United States in 1970. Since then, it has been given to those who could get exposed to environmental sources of anthrax such as service members, veterinarians, farmers, wool-workers, Colonel Shull said.

In December 2005, anthrax vaccine was found to be safe and effective against all forms of anthrax, including inhalation anthrax. Over the course of the last 37 years the safety and effectiveness of the anthrax vaccine has been demonstrated. The anthrax vaccine is just as safe as other vaccines we’re normally given over the course of our lives, he said.

Installation commanders ensure compliance with the AVIP by maintaining oversight and ownership of the installation’s AVIP implementation program.

“Ultimately, it comes down to the installation commanders to make sure this program works,” Colonel Shull said. “They will be responsible to ensure Airmen receive mandatory vaccines when required and voluntarily continue the dosing schedule if they so desire.”

Over the course of implementing this program, the Air Force will provide information and make additional information sources available to all Airmen about Anthrax and the AVIP. This includes a tri-fold hand-out, briefings, and web links.

20 fallen Airmen honored in Afghanistan

Capt. Travis Tougaw
455th Air Expeditionary Wing Public Affairs

BAGRAM AIRFIELD, Afghanistan — The 455th Air Expeditionary Wing here held a formal retreat March 4 to honor the 20 Air Force members who have died in Afghanistan since Operation Enduring Freedom began in 2001. Route 56, the wing’s NCO advisory council, planned the retreat. The council wanted “to remind everyone of the pride and honor that should be incorporated in our daily tasking and to create a renewed sense of esprit de corps,” said Tech. Sgt. Steven Wilson.

At the beginning of the ceremony, Airmen from across the wing read the names of the twenty fallen Air Force heroes and the circumstances of their deaths.

During his address, Brig. Gen. Christopher Miller, the 455th AEW commander, reminded wing members that some of the Airmen died in combat with the enemy and others died when their aircraft failed.

“The losses inflicted by the enemy are a stark reminder of the reason that we serve, so that our fellow Americans can sleep safely at night and enjoy the rich blessings that freedom brings to a worthy people,” he said. “But, the losses caused by the failure of our aircraft are an equally clear reminder of the nature of the Air Force and the ever-present need for us to work as a team to launch the best-prepared machines that we can into the demanding environment of Earth’s atmosphere.”

General Miller encouraged the wing to remember why they’re in Afghanistan. “Look to your left, look to your right, and when you can, look in a mirror, and you’ll see Airmen who stand in the tradition of those whose names we’ve read today,” he said. “None of our fallen comrades sought the sacrifice that we honor them for today, but they did something that we must all seek to do equally well: to bear true faith and allegiance to their nation, to their comrades of all services, to the ideals of the Constitution that we serve. Those words, true faith and allegiance, are very short, but their meaning is vast. We can aspire to very few things that mean more.”

In exhibiting faith and allegiance, those Airmen improved the lives of the Afghan people and people around the world, the general said. “They fought that men and women of America and their children, and the children of Afghanistan, and all free peoples might live in a world that is marked by trust and not hatred, freedom and not oppression,” he said. “Be proud of those we honor tonight, be humbled that we can serve a great nation, and be recommitted to victory in this historic fight.”

For Sergeant Wilson, the fight against terrorism holds personal significance. He was less than 30 yards from the bomb that exploded at the Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia in 1996. “I know what it’s like for terror to come knocking on your front door, and how lucky I was to survive with only moderate injuries,” he said. “I’m not sure there’s a day that has gone by in the last 10-plus years that I haven’t thought about that night. Hopefully, this ceremony will allow everyone, regardless of how often or ever, to stop and take a moment to reflect and remember.”

The ceremony marked five years since Senior Airman Jason Cunningham’s death. Airman Cunningham, a pararescueman from the 38th Rescue Squadron at Moody Air Force Base, Ga., was killed in action March 4, 2002, in Paktia Province when the quick reaction force he belonged to entered hostile territory to rescue two American service members. He was the first Airman to die in Afghanistan. The Air Force compound at Bagram Airfield is named in Cunningham’s honor.

Sergeant Wilson encouraged all members of the 455th AEW to read the plaque near the Camp Cunningham flag pole. “It’s important to remember the War on Terror is real and it can strike home at any time,” he said. “Thousands of Armed Forces members have paid the ultimate price, so that billions around the world can live free and without fear of terror.”

What is the cost of freedom

Chief Master Sgt. Frederick Soechting
14th Operations Support Squadron, Radar Approach Control Chief Controller

I have a question I would like you to ponder with me: "What is the cost of freedom?" Though it's a tough question, for the sake of brevity, I think you can squeeze it down to three main points: money, lives and liberty. I would like to share my thoughts with you as we explore the relevance of those three costs of freedom. From the beginning of recorded history, records have shown the pursuit of freedom to be a monetarily expensive endeavor, but let's look at the monetary cost of freedom in today's world.

According to Gordon Adams, director of security policy studies at the Elliott School of International Affairs at George Washington University, since the Gulf War, the United States has spent more than $70 billion fighting mad dictators and terrorists who refuse liberty to others. Let's put that into perspective. If you spent $1,000 a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year, how long would it take you to spend a billion dollars? Two years? 10 years? 100 years? How about 2,737 years before you ran out of money! Remember, we have spent more than $70 billion so far and retired Colonel Dan Smith, a military affairs analyst, estimates that it is costing almost $5 billion a month to maintain our presence in Iraq and Afghanistan. So, the cost of gaining and preserving freedom costs money but I think a quick analysis will show us that we have also paid for our freedom in a not-so-obvious loss of liberties.

Remember, when we could show up at the airport 20 minutes before our flight left and still make it? What about being able to park right next to that federal building or national monument? Examples like these demonstrate the price we are paying for freedom. There may be even more losses of liberty on the horizon. We have all heard of the controversies surrounding background checks and increased surveillance of the public. We may reach a point where "Big Brother" really is always watching. While I don't like the idea much, it may be another price or cost that I end up paying. While these losses of liberty I just spoke to have varying degrees of impact on our everyday lives, there are those who have paid the ultimate cost for freedom.

In his book, "For love of Country" Maurizo Viroli, an Associate Professor in the Department of Politics at Princeton University, says that if we are "truly committed to the liberty and freedom of our nation, we have to be willing to make severe sacrifices in pursuit of it." According to the infoplease website, since America declared its independence, 2,621,522 personnel have given their lives, arms, legs, eyes and much more to the preservation of freedom. That is an incredible level of sacrifice given by a single nation in the pursuit of one freedom or another spanning the globe. In my opinion, these are the highest costs imaginable and we as a nation have demonstrated a concrete resolve to pay even the highest costs in the pursuit of freedom.

Some people approach me when I am in uniform and say, "Thank you." Although, I sincerely appreciate this gesture, I am not worthy of their thanks for I am only doing that which I love to do. However, many of my fellow service members, active and retired, have personally witnessed others paying the ultimate price for freedom or have paid dearly themselves, to them, I say thank you for all you have done for me and others.

Please consider that the cost of freedom is worth every dime, liberty and life, when it means that our generation and all future generations will continue to live in a free America and a world free of the liberty stripping threat of terrorism.

NWSA, running the day-to-day operations as Chair of the Executive Committee and authoring the organization's major documents. She co-wrote the 1876

Declaration of Rights of Women and presented it at the nation's Centennial celebration. Gage also played an integral part in preserving the incredible record of the suffrage movement by co-editing the first three volumes of the History of Woman Suffrage.

Gage documented women's great accomplishments despite the discrimination and oppression they faced. A founder officer of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association, she worked to change a host of laws, including those that allowed the abuse of girls and denied mothers the guardianship of their own children.

As founder and president of the Women's National Liberal Union, Gage fought religious fundamentalists' attempt to create a theocracy and helped preserve religious freedom. A remarkable scholar, Gage promoted intellectual freedom, believing that the most important lesson she ever learned was to think for herself, a lesson she passed on to girls and women throughout her life.

Gage's long and brave career culminated in her 1893 volume "Woman, Church and State" in which she documented the misogyny committed in the name of the Christian religion, from trafficking in women to sexual abuse by the clergy. With her clear and unapologetic writing style and her wealth of knowledge, she backed up her theories with facts drawn from over 2,000 years of human history. Her work was far more sweeping in scope than another project to which Gage contributed, the controversial "Woman's Bible," edited by Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Her motto, penciled into numerous autograph books and carved on her tombstone, embodies her political stand: There is a word sweeter than mother, home or heaven. That word is liberty.

SUPT Class 07-06 earns silver wings

Twenty-four officers have prevailed during a year of training, earning the right to be an Air Force pilot.

Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 07-06 graduates at 10 a.m. today during a ceremony at the theater.

The graduation speaker is Maj. Gen. Jack J. Catton Jr., Director of Requirements, Headquarters Air Combat Command, Langley AFB, Va. As director, he is responsible for all functions relating to the acquisition of weapons systems for combat air forces, to include new systems and modifications to existing systems. Students receive their silver pilot's wings at the ceremony, and students who excelled in their respective training tracks are recognized.

Second Lts. Wyatt Cheek, T-38, and Daniel Piper, T-1, received the Air Education and Training Command Commander's Trophy for being the most outstanding students overall in their classes.

The Air Force Association Award was presented to 2nd Lt. Matthew Houck, T-1, and 2nd Lt. Matthew Strongin, T-38. The award is presented to a graduate in each flight who excelled in training and typified the tenets of the association — promoting aerospace power and a strong national defense.

Captain Ryan Fleming, T-1, and Lieutenants Cheek and Piper were named distinguished graduates.

The 52-week pilot training program begins with a six-week preflight phase of academics and physiological training to prepare students for flight.

The second phase, primary training, is conducted in the twin-engine, subsonic T-37 Tweet. Some complete this phase in the single-engine, turboprop T-6A Texan 2 at Moody AFB, Ga. Students learn aircraft flight characteristics, emergency procedures, takeoff and landing procedures, aerobatics and formation flying. Students also practice night, instrument and cross country navigation flying.

Primary training takes about 23 weeks and includes 254.4 hours of ground training, 27.3 hours in the flight simulator and 89 flying hours.

After primary training, students select, by order of merit, advanced training in the fighter-bomber or airlift-tanker track.

Both tracks are designed to best train pilots for successful transition to their follow-on aircraft and mission.

Advanced training for the fighter track is done in the T-38 Talon, a tandem-seat, twin-engine supersonic jet. T-38 training emphasizes formation, advanced aerobatics and navigation. Training takes about 26 weeks and includes 381 hours of ground events, 31.6 hours in the flight simulator and 118.7 flying hours.

The airlift-tanker track uses the T-1A Jayhawk, the military version of a multi-place business jet.

Instruction centers on crew coordination and management, instrument training, cross-country flying and simulated refueling and air-drop missions. Training takes about 26 weeks and includes 185 hours of ground training, 43 hours in the flight simulator and 104 flying hours.

The class reunites on graduation day, when students receive the aeronautical rating of pilot and begin their careers as U.S. Air Force pilots. (Editor's note: The class's pilot partners are Harvey's, The Grill and Peppers.)

Golf, bowl tournament deadline set for March 22

Pam Wickham
14th Services Division

The Whispering Pines Golf Course and Strike Zone Lanes have partnered to offer a unique golf and bowl tournament March 31.

Four-person teams will play 18 holes of golf in the morning and five games of Baker-style bowling in the afternoon. Entry is $35 per person and includes bowling, greens fees, lunch, a T-shirt, bowling towel, golf balls, tees and ball markers and a team picture.

“The deadline for entries is 5 p.m. March 22 at the golf course. No entries can be accepted after that date as we have to order T-shirts,” said Ricky Magers, PGA golf professional. “The field is limited to ten teams and spots will be awarded on a first-come, first served basis.” added Magers.

The golf part of the competition will begin at 8 a.m.

with a shotgun start and competition will be in the scramble format. Each player on the team hits a shot each time. The team then selects the most desirable shot to play next. All players in the foursome then hit from that point. Again, the team selects the “best” shot. The routine continues until the ball is holed-out. The only restriction is that each team is required to use each player’s tee shot at least three times during the round. This prevents a team from always using the same player’s tee shot. There will be no handicap in the golf event.

Lunch will be served on the golf course patio following the golf competition.

In the bowling portion of the competition, all teams will bowl five games using the “Baker” scoring system with a no-tap format. In the “Baker” system a team is bowling as a single player. The first bowler will bowl the 1st, 5th and 9th frames, the second bowler bowls the 2nd, 6th and 10th frames, the third bowler bowls the 3rd, 7th and if necessary the 11th frame and the fourth bowler bowls the 4th, 8th and if necessary the 12th frame. According to Nic Roos, bowling center manager, “With four-person teams you’ll want to put your best bowlers in the second and third positions in the lineup. Teams will move one pair of lanes to the right after each game. Bowlers do not need established averages due to the no-tap format and no handicap is awarded.” The no-tap format means that if you knock down nine pins it counts as a no-tap strike and scores the same as a regular strike.

Prizes will be awarded for the following: best team in bowling, best team in golf and best overall team, Golf and Bowl Champs. Other prizes are given for the worst team in each category, closet to the pin and longest drive in golf and the most natural bowling strikes by a team.

Applications are available at the golf course and bowling center. For more information, call Ext. 7932 or 2426.
